D420 "Back to Nature"

A collage of students from Elissa's class (SDCCS2 TK and K) created by parent and photographer, Heidi Hart. Heidi had each child choose a natural object from a small selection she brought into the classroom, and then had them really play with it, feel it, touch it, and bring it close to their face so that the lens could capture the expression in their eyes when they held something that was purely organic and from the earth. Heidi was inspired by the polarization she sees in her own kids-the difference in their body language and faces when they are occupied with video games versus exploration, being at the beach or park, etc. The collage is printed on canvas and stretched, and ready to hang. 24"x30"

L905 Sketch of Original SDCCS Arbor Mural

Your chance to own a piece of SDCCS history. In 2008 the first large scale mural was organized and painted by students, teachers and families of the San Diego Cooperative School. This was followed in 2009 by a mural that wraps around the art classroom and in 2010 in the auditorium. Rafael Lopez, SDCCS parent and internationally recognized illustrator and artist, has created all of the murals at SDCCS. This framed piece is a sketch of the first mural that now graces the arbor, with artist notes, words, and statements that reflect the school's mission around the edges.
