KEYNOTE: David Prescott
“How do we survive and thrive in this work?”

What have we learned about reducing the harms of abuse in the past 40 years? What have we learned about professional sustainability? What have we learned about getting better at our work? While our field has rightly discussed the importance of self-care in our work, very little focus has been placed on what research shows about becoming more effective as a practitioner. This presentation will illustrate what research has found about what does and doesn't contribute to professional development and will offer observations on current trends in treatment and how people make difficult changes.

KEYNOTE - Darrell Hammond Sr. "LEVERAGING KRYPTONITE"

This talk was designed for humans who've chosen to pour their lives into others to help others become the best that they can be. Most of us are consumed with more than one job that can accelerate fatigue and burnout. Everyone can teach a class on self-care, but few of us actually apply these principles. Influence, impact, effectiveness, relationships and fulfillment are casualties when not given the intentional attention. Both compelling reminders of these issues as well as practical tools and techniques will be shared to help us stay in the work of helping and serving others.

TRACK D

- LEVERAGING KRYPTONITE FOR LEADERS
- When Kids Know Too Much: Practical & Fun Tools for Addressing Sexual Behaviors in Children Ages 8-12
- Bridging the Age Gap: Examining the Emerging Adult Population through a Trauma-Informed Lens

- What is treatment like for ID/DD clients in prison?
- Reconsidering Self-Care for Post-Pandemic Supervision and Clinical Practice
- Combat Veterans and Domestic Violence Treatment
