1981 O'Day 23 w/trailer and Dillon Marina Slip (B Dock) FOR SALE

Hoping to find the right buyer for turn key sailboat transaction. We took her out the other weekend and even without as much water in the reservoir this season, was still beautiful and peaceful - and major plus - the new Tiki Bar operations by Steep Brewing are in full swing and their burger was INCREDIBLE! 1/3 lb grass-fed CO, highly recommend - and perfect after a sail!

Q&A
All the usual questions of a 45 year old sailboat:
Any issues with the hull or deck, soft spots, delamination and so on? NO

I believe these were all centerboards, any issue with the board, pivot, cable or winch? It is a little sticky could probably use a new cable, it is manual so easy to fix. A good cleaning would probably fix the stickiness

Any idea about the age of the standing rigging, what condition is it in? Standing rigging is functional but I would not consider it in good condition

Any damage to mast or boom other than wear and tear? No

What is the sail inventory and condition? Jib and main only sails are functional have been cleaned but are old and faded and stretched. Again fully functional but not in good condition.

What about the interior condition, bulkheads intact? Interior condition is fine for a boat its age

Any leaks into the interior? No

What projects do you have in mind for the boat? More less a full refit

What outboard comes with the boat? It has a very old 6hp outboard.

Is the trailer road worthy, what is the condition? Trailer is in decent condition we replaced one tire, if I were going outside Summit County I would probably brakes looked into, and bearings redone. But works fine for launching and towing back and forth to storage.
