CURRENT SITUATION/ WEATHER SUMMARY:

Irma was declared post-tropical by the National Hurricane Center early Tuesday morning. Mostly sunny skies are expected statewide with rain chances less than 20%. Temperatures will be near normal, but index values could reach the mid 90s this afternoon. Significant river flooding will continue over the next several days as heavy rainfall from Hurricane Irma drains into Florida Peninsula rivers. River Flood Warnings are in effect for 16 major river stems and creeks in Florida. Major to record flooding is occurring or expected along the following rivers: St. Johns, St. Mary’s, Black Creek, Haw Creek, Santa Fe, Ocklawaha, Deep Creek, Durbin Creek, Anclote, Hillsborough, Alafia, Little Manatee, Myakka, Horse Creek, Peace, Fisheating Creek, Imperial and Caloosahatchee. Water levels may take several days to weeks to recede.
