A boating accident investigation completed in 2017 by Investigator Molnar recently resulted in a guilty verdict resulting in a $1,000 fine and one-year probation from the court. The investigation involved an operator and one other occupant running through a dock causing more than $36,000 in damage including damage to the boat and the dock. Officer Corbin was on vessel patrol conducting boating safety and resource inspections in the Destin Harbor when he observed a 10-foot vessel operating with an expired boat registration and no registration displayed on the starboard side. The officer observed the small boat leaving an anchored sailboat in the harbor and heading toward land. Officer Corbin contacted Officer Pifer, who was on land patrol, and directed him to the location of where the small boat docked. Officer Pifer contacted the operator and conducted a boating safety inspection. The officer noticed discrepancies with the vessel's title. The vessel was registered as a 2016 10-foot homemade vessel and had a hull identification number (HIN) assigned to it that was different than the HIN number attached to the vessel. The vessel was identified as a 2001 10-foot Alumacraft. The registration expired on 10/13/17. The officers confirmed that the operator had been the owner of the vessel for a year, but had failed to transfer the title to his name. The owner stated he had not received the vessel title from the previous owner/seller. The owner provided the name of the person he purchased the boat from which matched the current registered owner of the stopped vessel. The officers concluded the stop and advised the new owner they would research the discrepancies and would be in contact later. The research determined the previous owner/seller had falsely/fraudulently titled the vessel as a homemade boat. Warrants were obtained and filed against the previous owner/seller for three felonies: title fraud, filing a fraudulent certificate of title and false statement and one misdemeanor for failure to notify the Department of Highway Safety Motor Vehicle (DHSMV) for selling the vessel.

Officer Ramos followed the vessel to a nearby boat ramp where the operator recovered the vessel from the water. The truck used to pull the boat did not have a registration tag on it nor the vessel trailer. After a thorough investigation, the operator was deemed to have purchased the out-of-state vessel in 2013 and failed to transfer the title. The truck he was driving had an expired registration of 2016. The owner was issued a criminal citation for failing to record an out of state vessel, a traffic citation for expired vehicle registration greater than 6 months, a boating citation for failing to carry required safety equipment, as well as multiple warnings for other violations.

Officer Ramos observed two men return from a fishing trip and followed them to a local boat ramp. The vessel was pushing a wake in an idle speed zone until they saw the officer approach. After a boating safety inspection, Officer Ramos asked if the men had caught any fish. The men showed him ten gray snapper and several unregulated fish in a cooler. The operator was booked into the Collier County Jail and refused to provide a breath sample. The operator was also cited for other violations.

While preparing for the spring turkey season, Officers Polly and Araujo found a ground blind on private property less than 10 yards from turkey bait. The officers continued to check on the property to ensure that feed was still present right up until opening day. Officer Araujo and Investigator McColgin hid on the property opening morning and witnessed subjects actively calling for turkey. At around 7:30 in the morning they heard a shot and soon after encountered the subject to address the violation of hunting turkey over bait. The subject killed two bearded gobblers while hunting well within 100 yards of a game feeding station with feed present. Officer Araujo issued the subject a notice to appear for the violation and educated the subject and his son, who later thanked him for his professionalism.

While looking for bait prior to the start of spring turkey season, Officer Polly came upon a trail that led from private land into the Picayune Strand WMA. Officer Polly followed the trail and found a permanent tree stand built into the trees with a hunting blind underneath. Also at the site was a feeder cable tied to the trees and an active game camera. Officer Polly returned to the site two days before season opened and observed cracked corn within 10 yards of the blind. Officer Reams and Officer Polly worked the area opening weekend but no hunters came. On the third morning, Officer Polly observed two subjects enter the area. After listening to the subjects actively call turkeys for approximately an hour Officer Polly contacted the subjects to address the violations. During questioning one of the subjects admitted to building the stand and placing the bait in the WMA. Both subjects were issued notices to appear for attempting to take wildlife over bait in a WMA, hunting turkeys within 100 yards of feed, and each received a citation for failing to possess a valid quota permit. Officers issued misdemeanors and infractions accordingly reference their violations.

The SRB Dive Team conducted a Targeted Enforcement Action Plan around Key West Harbor. While uniformed officers conducted boating safety inspections, dive members inspected the ground tackle the vessels were using. Most of the violations were found on the south end of Fleming Key near the entrance to Key West Harbor. Various types of anchor systems were observed and documented with the prevailing circumstance that the anchor systems were permanently affixed to the bottom and that these systems could not be retrieved by human power or by mechanical means. Numerous vessel inspections were conducted, many users were checked, multiple boating citations/written warnings were given and a significant amount of education/public outreach contacts were made.

FWC SRB Dive Team worked in conjunction with Monroe County Sheriff's Office's dive team to target illegal moorings within anchorages throughout the Florida Keys. The team members were able to dive down and examine the moorings to determine whether or not they are in compliance with Florida Statutes. Since the statute changed in July of 2017, the team members used the opportunity to not only enforce violations, but to educate the public on the statute changes and advise the residents of the anchorages on how to come into compliance. During the enforcement action, dive team members also examined sunken derelict vessels, conducted boating safety and removed artificial habitats (known to illegally harvest spiny lobsters), and removed other sorts of debris and trash from the basin bottoms.
