1:30pm

Today's performers are scholarship fellows in the Academy at the Music Institute of Chicago, a nationally recognized training center for highly gifted pre-college pianists and string players. The program provides a comprehensive music education for students who aspire to be professional musicians. Conveniently located at Lake Forest College, the Academy is a musical community of faculty, staff, and students who come together each Saturday for an intensive 30-week program, September through May. The program focuses on providing a thorough musical education that includes private lessons with Academy artist faculty, a rigorous chamber music component, a stimulating chamber orchestra experience, and accelerated music theory classes. Pianists additionally study keyboard history and literature, improvisation, and keyboard skills in an intimate group setting.

A hallmark of the Academy is the regular master class where the student body gathers each week to perform and observe acclaimed musicians and educators share their knowledge, creating an unparalleled educational experience. Academy students are national prize winners who matriculate to the nation's top conservatories and universities.

Fran Randall was the chairperson for the Levy Center Building Fund Committee. She labored tirelessly to raise funds for the new senior center facility. She worked closely with Bernard J. Dobroski, former dean of Northwestern University's nationally noted School of Music. Ms. Randall & Mr. Dobroski worked on an outreach project as Northwestern University and Levy Center joined forces to provide music to the senior population. The Levy Center's Steinway grand piano had complete restoration and refinishing work. It was their vision to have college music student's play for seniors on the grand piano. Ms. Randall passed away in December 2003 but her dream came true in the Fall of 2004. Music students from colleges and universities are invited to be part of this music series in Evanston. All concerts will include the Levy Centers 85-year old grand piano.
