There's a Method to the Data Madness: Part 2

Monday, Nov. 18
2-3 p.m. (EDT)

The Indiana State Department of Health is hosting a live webcast on the recently released drug overdose data dashboard. The dashboard includes data on opioid prescriptions, hospital discharges, deaths and county-level programs. Easy-to-read graphs and charts allow users to sift through various data sets and to compare county statistics.

This webcast will provide an overview of the dashboard and explain how the dashboard can be used to inform drug overdose prevention and response efforts.

HOW TO TUNE IN: To view ISDH webcasts, test your access to view streaming videos several days prior to the event. Using Internet Explorer, visit <http://videocenter.isdh.in.gov/videos/> and click on any thumbnail. If the video does not play, your network may have restrictions that prevent you from watching streaming content. If you experience problems with accessibility, contact your system administrator. WiFi connectivity should be avoided given variable connection speeds and the risk of buffering problems. At the indicated date and time, this webcast will be available via the Live Video options at the top and right side of the webpage. Questions can be submitted both during and after the webcast at: indianatrauma@isdh.in.gov.
