

David Eager assumes lead role at Kentucky Retirement Systems

FRANKFORT, KY. (Sept. 1, 2016) – The Kentucky Retirement Systems (KRS) today welcomed David L. Eager of Louisville as its Interim Executive Director, replacing William Thielen who retired September 1. Eager was named to the position by the KRS Board of Directors at its August 24 meeting.

Eager was appointed to the KRS Board of Directors by Gov. Matt Bevin earlier this year but has stepped down from that role in order to take the helm of KRS.

"I am excited to begin work with the Kentucky Retirement Systems as we move to a new chapter in providing benefits and services to more than 355,000 Kentucky members and retirees," said Eager. "As I told the board when accepting this position, I will not be just a caretaker until a full-time person is appointed. We are already busy at work discovering ways in which we can address the issues facing KRS and our many constituents."

Mr. Eager has a long history working in the investment industry. Most recently he was a partner in Eager, Davis & Holmes, LLC, of Louisville, which provides consulting to the institutional investment industry.

Previously he was a National Practice Leader for William Mercer, the global benefits and investment consulting firm.
