Manager FAQ: COVID-19 response

Below are answers for managers and supervisors to frequently asked questions related to COVID-19, also known as coronavirus, and the Met Council's impact and response. This page is a living document and will be updated regularly when we have new information or guidance to share.

If you have questions not answered below, please ask your division head. Or, if you would like to ask anonymously, you can submit your question or comment in this online form. Others may be wondering the same thing, and we will review submissions daily and try to address the question or concern in this FAQ or other upcoming communication.

Click on a question below to jump down to its answer, or scroll through the questions and answers on this page.

Managers and supervisors, please visit the Employee FAQ for complete information. Most of our information that is evolving with the pandemic is housed on the employee page to minimize duplication, as the content is important for both employees and managers/supervisors.

1. What should I do as a manager or supervisor to help my employees?

Now is an important time to spend time talking with your employees about how they're feeling and what their concerns are. Prioritize time for this; if possible, try to dedicate time each day to walk around and talk with your employees. Let us know what you hear, and we'll work to find information to address their concerns. You can submit issues you hear through the online COVID-19 form (anonymously or with your name and email to receive a reply), or you can contact your division director.

2. Can I allow or encourage my team to work from home?

(Updated 12-3-21)

Some Met Council staff have been working remotely during the COVID-19 pandemic in order to reduce the number of people onsite at our facilities and minimize exposure for onsite employees – doing our part to help reduce community transmission.

The decision to implement telework does not assume that working on Met Council property is not safe. It's an effort to provide sufficient social distancing to prevent the spread of COVID-19, as recommended by the Minnesota Department of Health.

Guidance for teleworking during the pandemic:

- All employees who are able and authorized to telework should continue to do so through at least Jan. 31, 2022. (Read more about this updated timeline in the Dec. 2 all-staff email.)
 - Equipment needs should be coordinated through the division operations chief who will work with Information Services. There are limited resources available. (For divisions without a specific operations chief, work with your division director.)
 - Employees can access their Outlook email and OneDrive through their personal computers/laptops and internet connections.
- The manager and employee should agree on work tasks and work schedule.
 - Establish standard daily or weekly check-in.
 - Set expectations about each employee's workday and "hot hours" (e.g., 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.) when everyone on the team is available for phone calls, virtual meetings, etc.
 - Establish clear tasks and timeframes.
- Managers should document plans and communicate expectations to their teams to ensure employees can continue to coordinate and work together.
- Employees may telework while providing care to a dependent when schools or daycares are closed. Employees will be allowed flexibility outside typical work hours and even established "hot hours" to reach 40 hours of work (or combination of work and annual leave) within a pay period as long as they are actually conducting their job duties.
- Due to the varied nature of work performed by Met Council employees, many duties cannot be performed remotely so not every employee will have the opportunity to telework. This is one of many strategies to help slow the spread of the virus.

Notes on teleworking and technology, data practices, and more:

- As you are working from home, please be conscientious of how you're handling non-public data. Please refer to these guidelines in the FAQ related to data practices.
- Review the technology section of the employee FAQ for technical support and resources.
- See the question on the employee FAQ regarding data practices guidance for teleworking.
- Contact the IS ServiceDesk for assistance or questions.

3. Can I create an alternate work schedule for my staff?

Adjusting work schedules is one way to limit interactions in the workplace and can assist with social distancing. Supervisors are encouraged to consider using staggered schedules where appropriate.

4. Are we adjusting our leave processes for people staying home sick or caring for family members sick?

(Updated 11-19-21)

If your employees are sick, they should stay home. This practice should always be followed, especially during a public health crisis.

Flexibility:

- While we encourage managers to be flexible with their staff where possible, including allowing situational instances where staff work remotely, we are also aware of operational realities where people are not able to work from home.
- If employees are concerned about flex time or telework options, they should coordinate with their managers and if you need help, contact the Employee Resource Center in Human Resources.

Paid leave:

- The Met Council's COVID-19 Leave Policy began in March 2020 and expired on Sept. 17, 2021.
- However, the Met Council established a COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Procedure to assist vaccinated employees if they cannot work for COVID-19-related reasons. The procedure is effective as of Nov. 13, 2021. See details below.
- If an employee tests positive for COVID-19, cannot telework, and is not eligible for the Paid Administrative Leave Procedure, they are expected to use their accrued paid time off, unless the Met Council verifies it was from a workplace exposure.

The COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Procedure can be used by employees who are fully vaccinated against COVID-19 (as defined by the Met Council's Vaccine and Testing Requirement Procedure) and who either a) test positive for COVID-19 and cannot telework during their required isolation period or b) cannot telework and need to care for a child who must isolate due to a positive COVID-19 diagnosis, exposure per local public health guidelines, or school closure.

Eligible employees are entitled to a maximum of 56 hours (pro-rated for part-time).

Eligible employees who are requesting this leave should complete the COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Request form \(PDF\) and submit a copy of the requested documentation (proof of diagnosis, etc.).

Review the procedure in Policy Central for full details on eligibility and using the leave.

Read more about the procedure in the Nov. 19 all-staff email.

5. May I ask an employee if they have been possibly exposed to the virus during travel?

Yes, managers may inquire about possible exposure to the virus during travel. However, if these inquiries are made, they must be directed to all employees known or believed to have recently traveled to areas affected by COVID-19; such inquiries cannot be directed only to employees of certain races, ethnicities, national origins, or other protected categories.

6. What should I do if an employee becomes ill at work with influenza-like symptoms?

Managers may send home employees who display symptoms of contagious diseases but must be careful to send all employees home who display similar symptoms. If an employee goes home because they are displaying symptoms of a contagious disease, follow continue to normal policies and procedures for FMLA and other leave.

7. What if an employee refuses to come to work out of fear of getting sick?

Unless directed otherwise by a health care provider or the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), employees who are well should report to work or telework.

The employee must continue to follow normal policies and procedures for requesting leave and may be subject to disciplinary action for failing to show up for work or for failing to comply with normal leave policies and procedures.

Supervisors and managers should work to address the employee's concerns with the help of Human Resources as needed, including the application of current recommendations of social distancing in the workplace. If the employee requests time off they need to use accrued leave per the Met Council's normal leave policies and procedures. Employees feeling anxious about COVID-19 should get accurate information from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, MDH, and/or consider contacting Sand Creek, the Met Council's employee assistance program.

8. What if an employee suspects they may have COVID-19?

Anyone who is experiencing COVID-19 symptoms should immediately contact their health care provider and seek testing, regardless of their vaccination status.

How to get a COVID-19 test:

- Walk in or schedule an appointment for a free test at one of the state's COVID-19 Community Testing Sites across Minnesota.
- Order a free test through the state's COVID-19 Test at Home program.
- If you have a HealthPartners medical plan, visit their website for testing information.

9. What should I do if an employee has been confirmed to have COVID-19?

(Updated 9-22-21)

Contact Human Resources to determine appropriate steps to take with the employee and report the absence to the Employee Resource Center (EmployeeResourceCenter@metc.state.mn.us or 612-349-7558).

10. What should I do if MDH or the employee's physician prohibits an employee from reporting to work?

(Updated 11-19-21)

If the employee is able to work, consider alternative or flexible work options under the applicable collective bargaining agreement or Met Council policies, if feasible. If an employee is unable to work, even with an alternative or flexible work option, they can use the COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Procedure, if eligible, or they need to use personal leave or work with their supervisor to manage the situation within their current benefit offerings.

Note: The Met Council's COVID-19 Leave Policy expired on Sept. 17, 2021.

Effective Nov. 13, 2021, the Met Council established a COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Procedure for employees who are fully vaccinated against COVID-19 and test positive for COVID-19. Read more about the procedure in the Nov. 19 all-staff email.

11. How should I report COVID-19-related absences?

(Updated 11-30-21)

Managers need to report the following employee absences to the Met Council's Employee Resource Center (EmployeeResourceCenter@metc.state.mn.us):

- Employees out sick with COVID-19
- Employees in quarantine (self or doctor-directed)
- Employees out caring for a family member sick with COVID-19

For Metro Transit, managers should submit a contract tracing form and confirmation of a positive result.

12. How will leave be covered if an employee is sick with COVID-19 or is out caring for a family member who is sick with COVID-19?

(Updated 11-19-21)

Effective Nov. 13, 2021, the Met Council established a COVID-19 Paid Administrative Leave Procedure for employees who are fully vaccinated against COVID-19 and who either (a) test positive for COVID-19 and who cannot telework during their required isolation period or (b) cannot telework and need to care for a child who must isolate due to a positive COVID-19 diagnosis, exposure per local public health guidelines, or school closure. Read more about the procedure in the Nov. 19 all-staff email.

If the employee is not eligible for this administrative leave or cannot institute an alternative or flexible work option, they need to use personal leave or work with their supervisor to manage the situation within their current benefit offerings.

13. When should an employee be allowed to return to work after being sick with COVID-19?

Employees should follow the guidance of their medical provider but may not be required to provide medical certification of fitness for duty upon their return from leave.

If an employee presents with symptoms consistent with COVID-19, HealthPartners advises that they stay home until:

- At least 3 days (72 hours) have passed since resolution of fever without the use of fever-reducing medications; AND
- Improvement in respiratory symptoms (e.g., cough, shortness of breath); AND
- At least 7 days have passed since symptoms first appeared.

14. Do we need to track the time or costs we've been putting in to prepare for or respond to the impacts of COVID-19?

(Updated 1-8-21)

Yes, we have been directed to track costs (time and expenses) associated with this public health event. This is only for employees who have spent more than 10 hours working directly on our organization's preparation for and response to COVID-19.

If you have time and/or costs that need to be tracked due to COVID-19 tasks, please contact your division finance director and they will help you with next steps.

For information on how to track time of an employee out on COVID-19 Leave, see question #6 above for full information about the new COVID-19 Leave policy 3.0, effective January 1, 2021, or see the top of this page for links to all related documents.

15. If we are hiring an intern for the summer, is there anything we should do differently this year?

(Updated 9-22-21)

The Met Council is taking appropriate action to safeguard its employees from COVID-19 and one of the actions is social distancing. Internships may be conducted remotely or with adjusted work schedules, depending on the business needs of the work unit. Hiring has not yet begun for the 2022 summer internship and Urban Scholars programs.

If you have any questions about the internship program, contact Luis Martinez at Luis.Martinez@metc.state.mn.us.

16. Who can I contact at the Met Council for further guidance?

(Updated 7-2-20)

We encourage you to connect with your direct supervisor or division director if you have questions about critical services and how your work is being prioritized. You can also submit questions through this online form.

For additional information or guidance, contact the following teams in Human Resources:

- General questions: An HR Business Partner (Becky Grams, Walt Joy, Nathan Smith) or any HR manager for help
- Regarding the COVID-19 Leave policy or Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA): Employee Resource Center (EmployeeResourceCenter@metc.state.mn.us)
- Regarding work accommodations: Occupational Health (HR-OccHealth@metc.state.mn.us)

The Human Resources directory on MetNet has more contact information for staff.

If you have any questions about the impacts of COVID-19 leave on pay, please direct those to the Employee Resource Center (EmployeeResourceCenter@metc.state.mn.us) in Human Resources. Those questions should not go to the Payroll department.
