Urban League of Metropolitan St. Louis

Governor Parson recognized the Urban League of Metropolitan St. Louis for its contribution to Missouri's COVID-19 Vaccine distribution efforts, particularly among the most vulnerable populations. In partnership with the Missouri National Guard, the Urban League worked to administer COVID-19 vaccinations in senior living facilities in the African American community, to school educators and staff, and other disproportionately impacted areas.

The Urban League of Metropolitan St. Louis, Inc., (ULSTL) is a nonprofit organization that has been providing social services to the Metropolitan St. Louis community since 1918. The Urban League's mission is "to assist African Americans and others throughout the region in securing economic self-reliance, social equality and civil rights." Each year, the Urban League serves residents through programming supporting economic opportunity, educational excellence, community empowerment, civil rights, and advocacy.

Mr. McMillan has served as the 7th President and CEO on July 17, 2013 officially assuming the role on August 5, 2013. responsible for the design and implementation of several of the region's most innovative programs including Serving Our Streets (SOS), which provides direct resource delivery into four of St. Louis' more challenged neighborhoods, where crime continues to trend down. Mr. Clark also developed the Pulpit to Porches Initiative which works to empower neighborhoods by delivering resources to residents through churches located in the neighborhood. Over 112 Churches have registered, with 75 churches being trained and are currently doing neighborhood engagement and outreach. Operation: Clean Sweep has grown exponentially over its six-year existence and is now implemented in 12 neighborhoods, including areas of St. Louis City, County, and East St. Louis. To date, over 175 vacant lots have been cleaned and cleared of overgrowth and debris and over 210 vacant and abandoned properties have been demolished.

Mr. Clark is also responsible for the development and implementation of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Amnesty Project. In 2017, Clark launched the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Gun Violence De-Escalation Network. The resource serves 3rd party individuals, or community members who have information on conflicts that may result in gun violence. Trained De-Escalators then engage the adversaries to generate a truce. In 2021, Clark and his team have successfully de-escalated conflicts that either had an episode of or had the trajectory towards gun violence. The De-escalation Center concept is being requested for replication in Wilmington, DE, Selma and Birmingham, AL, Lexington, KY, and Kansas City, MO

Mr. Clark is regarded as a leading voice in America on the issue of neighborhood stabilization, gun violence, and community organizing. Clark was born and raised in North St. Louis. He attended the St. Louis Public Schools and served in the United States Army. After his military service he attended Colorado State University. Clark served in the Mayor's Office under Mayor Freeman Bosley, Jr. and participated in the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University in 1994. Paris FFA held weekly Zoom meetings during the pandemic, creating lessons that focused on the five quality standards of the growing leaders section of the Program of Activities (POA). The chapter also held an event to cull the number of coyotes, which are predators in the area, and awarded prizes to participating community members. In another show of community support, the chapter visited each home in town, providing them with smoke detectors and batteries as needed. The FFA members worked with the local fire department to help install the fire detectors to ensure the safety of their community.

The National Chapter Award program recognizes outstanding FFA chapters that actively implement the organization's mission and strategies. These chapters improve chapter operations using the National Quality FFA Chapter Standards and a POA that emphasizes growing leaders, building communities, and strengthening agriculture. Chapters are rewarded for providing educational experiences for the entire membership. National FFA recognizes the top chapters with innovative activities in each of the three divisions: growing leaders, building communities, and strengthening agriculture. Chapters that receive three-star ratings during judging are eligible to compete for the premier chapter awards. Ten FFA chapters competed for the honor. Paris FFA was recognized as the winner during the third general session on Thursday, October 28, 2021.
