Minneapolis Police Investigating Mid-Afternoon Shooting That Killed 11-Year-Old Boy

June 23, 2025 (MINNEAPOLIS) – Minneapolis Police Chief Brian O'Hara shared the heartbreak news that an 11-year-old boy has died after being shot Monday afternoon.

At approximately 2:08 p.m., Fourth Precinct officers responded to a report of gunfire at Folwell Park on Dowling Avenue North.

Preliminary information indicates gunfire erupted within the park. Witnesses reported seeing a vehicle driving through the park and two other vehicles moving through the adjacent parking lot at the time of the shooting.

Shortly afterward, a resident sitting on his porch near Morgan Avenue North and Dowling Avenue North heard cries for help. He discovered the boy suffering from a life-threatening gunshot wound, along with two other males, outside his home. The resident placed the child and one of the males into his vehicle and began driving toward the hospital. On the way, he flagged down an officer near Penn and Dowling Avenues. The officer immediately removed the boy from the vehicle and initiated lifesaving efforts. Despite efforts by police, fire, and EMS personnel, the boy was pronounced dead at the scene.

The Minneapolis Police Department is actively investigating the circumstances surrounding the shooting.

“I cannot emphasize enough how terrible it is to have an 11-year-old boy shot and killed in the middle of the day,” said Chief O’Hara. “We need anyone with information to come forward so we can bring some sense of justice to this child’s family. We are following every lead, but we need the public’s help to solve this.”

The Hennepin County Medical Examiner will release the child’s name, as well as the official cause and manner of death.
