

Wake County School Psychologist Provides Education to Students During Disability History and Awareness Month

School psychologists assist in promoting a respectful environment for diverse populations. An example of application of this professional standard was captured as Alycia Patierno, School Psychologist in Wake County, (pictured left) works with all students in an elementary classroom during Disability History & Awareness Month. Within this lesson, Mrs. Patierno was providing whole class instruction on acceptance of students with disabilities.

For more information about her work in a comprehensive role, supporting the education of ALL students, Mrs. Patierno can be reached at apatierno@wcpss.net.
