Educationally Equitable IDEA Evaluation and Identification Practices

During this webinar, the successive process of special education evaluations will be reviewed, beginning with the initial referral. Analysis of the information brought forward that leads to the referral will be discussed as the basis for sound evaluation planning practices. Within the evaluation process, participants will review the requirements to adhere to with every evaluation. A structured framework will be presented as a model for synthesizing the multiple sources of data collected within the evaluation, and applying these sources to sound eligibility and instructional planning decisions.

Participants will:

- 1 - Review and connect federal and state evaluation and identification requirements with evaluation planning practices
- 2 - Apply an organizational framework designed to promote alignment with the federal and state requirement that multiple sources of relevant data are consistently collected by evaluation teams
- 3 - Apply an organizational framework to promote alignment with the federal and state requirement of assuring that multiple sources of relevant data are equitably applied in the identification practices of IEP teams.
