How should virtual students be treated compared to in-building students?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Students remain district students, subject to the same policies and rules as when taking classes in person. • Best practice: Apply the same prerequisites, registration deadlines, attendance expectations, grading policies, and accountability rules as for in-person students. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Students remain district students, subject to the same policies and rules as when taking classes in person. • Best practice: Be aware that NDCDE has policies in addition to district requirements. Apply the same rules to NDCDE students as in-building students for registration, prerequisites, grading, and accountability.
Who pays for courses? Retakes?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: District must pay if it does not offer the course and credit is needed for on-time graduation. • District discretion: No obligation if the course is offered locally; retakes are discretionary. • Best practice: Publish a clear list of what the district covers; mirror in-person retake rules. District covers retakes tied to disability, medical issues, or documented need. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: District must provide an NDCDE Virtual Course Enrollment Application: Student Request for District Paid NDCDE Course to any interested student. District must approve application and pay for any NDCDE course if: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ The desired course is not offered locally by the school district ○ Scheduling issues prevent a student from taking a locally offered course ○ The student has previously failed a locally offered course and there is no other teacher for them to retake the course from ○ The student needs the course to meet the requirements of Graduation and/or Choice Ready and still graduate on time Note: Each district must have a written appeal process in instances of applicant denial AND must track the number of approved and denied applications for reporting purposes.

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • District discretion: School districts should thoughtfully consider whether to pay for a locally offered course if presented with compelling rationale in Reason 5 on the application. The decision of whether to pay for retakes for failed NDCDE courses is at the district’s discretion. • Best practice: Utilize the NDCDE Virtual Course Enrollment Application: Student Request for District Paid NDCDE Course, or create a district specific application that includes the same key information (including everything from Part 3 and 4)
Extensions or holds	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Nothing specific. • District discretion: District may approve or deny. • Best practice: Approve for good cause (illness, family emergency). 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Nothing specific. • District discretion: Local policy governs approval and payment. • Best practice: Same as district virtual — approve for good cause. Treat long-term extensions the same as retakes.
Who pays for supplies and materials?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Nothing specific. District discretion: Local policy decides. • Best practice: Parents buy items normally provided at home (notebooks, calculators). District provides items normally provided in-person (lab kits, microscopes). 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: Nothing specific. • District discretion: Local policy decides. • Best practice: Same split as district virtual —parents cover home items; districts cover school-supplied items.
Registration, add, and drop	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: The law allows districts to require add/drop periods for virtual courses to coincide with in-person deadlines. • Best practice: Use the same registration/add/drop windows as for building-based courses. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: The law allows districts to require add/drop periods for NDCDE courses to coincide with in-person deadlines. • Best practice: Use the same registration/add/drop windows as for building-based courses.
Onsite requirements	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: District may set a minimum number of onsite hours during which virtual or in-person instruction takes place but cannot unreasonably restrict access. • District discretion: Define local requirements for onsite learning. • Best practice: Publish clear onsite attendance policy so families know when a Statement of Intent to Homeschool should be considered. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Law requires: District may set a minimum number of onsite hours, but cannot unreasonably restrict access to NDCDE courses.
