

We are Humans of Housing

This little poem, is here to say
We thank you for what you bring each day.

Repairs: You mend, and fix not just the solid parts,
But bring together the community heart.
Out there every day, seeing faces look your way,
We appreciate all you do, thank you for being you.

Independent Living Coordinators: You care, and share all you have.
Giving everything you can.
Making our older generation feel heard,
Even if it's just saying a kind word.

Income: You're there to support and find a way.
We always want our tenants to stay.
Through thick and thin you do your part,
Thank you for being Housings heart.

Housing Options: You know that being homeless can make you feel low,
But the support you give will help them grow.
You're also there to lend an ear,
To make sure they have a voice and no fear.

Lettings: People still need a home,
And this where you come into your own.
You help them find their piece of heart,
Sometimes giving them a fresh start.

Housing Officers: You are the network connection,
You do it all from sign ups to tenant flection.
Only a call away, you always find the time of day.
To help and care, to provide a better way.

And to those currently working from home,
Providing a lifeline down the end of the phone.
We could not do this without you.
Frontline are the key pieces, and you are the glue.
So a million times we say, Thank you!
