About this event - As part of the RISE Programme, funded by the Department for Education (DfE), the Council for Disabled Children (CDC) have been invited by local leaders in East Riding to deliver a workshop which will focus on developing a local framework for co-production.

Audience - This workshop is aimed at a multi-agency audience, bringing together parent carer representatives as well as practitioners from across health, education, local authority, and social care teams; strategic leaders, service managers and senior practitioners; as well as those representing SENDIASS and voluntary sector organisations.

Workshop details

This is a full day, in-person workshop that will include:

- Exploring what co-production is and isn't:
  - Terminology.
  - Methods of engagement and some models of practice.
  - Barriers to co-production & foundations of good practice.
- Understanding what co-production means and looks like currently for different teams and stakeholders within East Riding.
- Learning from good practice regarding co-production elsewhere in the country.
- Agreeing key principles, values and approaches for co-production in East Riding.
- Co-developing a one-page framework and plan for co-production in East Riding.
