

What is it?

Our London Collection Bursary has been introduced to support us in opening up roles related to collections in museums to people who may not have considered a career in the museum and heritage sector before now, including those who may have faced additional barriers throughout their time in education.

The bursary provides one student with the following:

- An annual £1000 bursary for the duration of their undergraduate studies
- A two-month paid summer placement working within one or more departments of the museum, for each year of their undergraduate studies.

Who is it for?

The bursary is intended to support a student who may be interested in a career in the museum and heritage sector but has had limited exposure to these sectors up to now.

Paid summer student placement and annual £1,000 bursary at the Museum of London

How do I apply?

Applications will open online on 1 July 2024 to be submitted by 21 July 2024. Please email earlycareers@museumoflondon.org.uk if you're interested in applying.

We'll invite shortlisted applicants to an informal discussion with us during the week commencing Monday 5 August 2024.

Applications

We particularly welcome applications from the following groups, because we know they're underrepresented in the museum and heritage workforce:

- Applicants who identify as Black, Asian or ethnically diverse
- Disabled applicants
- Applicants who identify as male or non-binary

To be eligible you should:

- Have studied your post-16 qualifications in at a school or college in London
- Be planning to begin studying at a higher education institution in autumn 2024 (including if you're planning to apply through Clearing)
- Be intending to study a subject which you feel is relevant to the work of a museum
- Have an interest in learning more about working in museums

You might also have:

- Been eligible for free school meals (anytime during the last six years)
- Experience of care
