Manchester City Council is recruiting short-break foster carers – people with experience of working with children who have a physical or learning disability.

You'll help to look after a child in your own home between one and four nights a month, helping to give their family a break.

Each child is matched with you, and there are plenty of visits and meetings for you to get to know each other before an overnight stay occurs, to make sure that the child is settled.

You can fit caring around your permanent job, and we'll provide you with training and development to help you through your fostering career.
