

Moving forward together with the Recovery College

Co-production Conversations

Monday 2 October 2023

On Monday 2 October, we will be hosting an afternoon of co-production conversations to explore what matters most to our community, and we really need your input.

Our students are at the heart of what we do, and we need to hear from them, as well as our valued partners. The way we work together matters and our past and present (as well as future) students and partners can add a lot to the way we work, what we do and how we shape our wellbeing offering.

We'll provide lunch, and in return, we're asking you for honest feedback about your experiences with us, as well as your hopes and expectations for the future.

Conversation and connection matter most to us at this event, we'll be having other activities as well, but we want to listen to what you have to say.

Places are limited, get your free ticket at <https://tinyurl.com/yc4k832c> or

More details on timing and venue will follow once you've signed up.

We also hope you will want to participate in further conversations later. We'll explain more about that and how to join on the day.

Come for lunch, stay for the conversation, and work with us to support personal recovery, and mental health, well-being in our community.
