ASSEMBLIES

for all

Visit the Assemblies for All website for FREE access to hundreds of high quality, inclusive assemblies for both primary and secondary schools.

What is it?

This unique website features hundreds of interactive, meaningful assemblies made by education professionals, from charities like Amnesty, Unicef, and Oxfam, to organisations such as the UK Parliament and the BBC. They provide a fantastic way to support the spiritual, moral, social, and cultural development of young people.

Assemblies for All is brilliant and will be a real timesaver for teachers. Easy to access information all in one place makes planning an assembly that is genuinely inclusive a pleasure not a chore!

How do I use it?

To help teachers to find what they are looking for, the assemblies are arranged by theme, organisation, key stage, and, for many of them, by a corresponding event in the calendar. The calendar contains notable dates across the year so that assemblies can be used to mark important events such as International Women's Day, World Environment Day, and Martin Luther King Jr Day. Teachers should be able to quickly and easily find inclusive assemblies on a wide range of topics!

I am very impressed by how user-friendly the site is in terms of grouping by age and theme. It will definitely be a boon to time-pressed educators.
