Overview:

Supporting the early years sector is a priority for this government. Early years practitioners deliver invaluable, high-quality provision to millions of children each day. They play a crucial role in enriching the lives of the children they care for and enable parents and carers to access the labour market.

In the Government's Spring Budget, the Chancellor announced the single biggest investment in childcare ever made in England. By 2027-28 this Government expects to be spending in excess of £8bn every year on the early years, helping working families with their childcare costs. We want to work closely with the sector to ensure early years providers are ready and able to offer these new entitlements.

We are proposing to make changes to a range of Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) requirements to offer providers increased flexibility and alleviate known burdens. Our aim is to ensure providers can operate successfully, practitioners can focus on providing children in their care with a high-quality early education and progressing their careers and parents can access the childcare they want for their children.

We also know that the current EYFS framework is a long document, covering the whole of the early years sector and that some requirements within it vary by provider type. The proposals in this document set out how we plan to make the EYFS a more practical and usable document for different types of provider.

The proposals in this consultation have been informed by conversations with a wide range of stakeholders and early years providers. We hope to hear from many people and organisations so we can gather a broad range of views to help us reach well-informed decisions.

To note, this consultation builds on the measures consulted on in Summer 2022 and announced at the Spring Budget 2023. The changes to 2 year old staff to child ratios and supervision whilst eating are due to come into force in September 2023, subject to parliamentary procedure.

Summary of proposed changes:

The changes summarised below make up the proposals within a consultation regarding the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS). These changes aim to make the framework easier to navigate and use for all practitioners, including proposals for the creation of streamlined childminder and group/school-based provider versions of EYFS framework, as well as providing the sector with more flexibility. Further to these changes, through creating the provider specific versions of the EYFS, we also intend to make a number of clarifications to existing requirements to make them easier to understand and follow.

This table below aims to set out each of the proposals, who the change will apply to, the rationale behind them, and whether it is an item for consultation or a clarification of existing requirements.

Throughout	It is our intention to create two simplified versions of the EYFS framework: one for childminders and one for group and school-based providers. In both versions of the EYFS framework, DfE intends to modify language, reorder sentences and paragraphs, change references to provider type where relevant, and remove elements not relevant to the provider type. Section 1: Learning and Development (1.13)	English as an Additional Language The EYFS currently states that ‘For children whose home language is not English, providers must take reasonable steps to provide opportunities for children to develop and use their home language in play and learning, supporting their language development at home.’  DfE is consulting on whether to change this requirement from “must” to “should” or “may” in both versions of the EYFS. Altering the language to “should” would mean providers would be expected to meet the requirement unless they have good reason not to. This will continue to be part of the registration process under this proposal. There is a range of EYFS training courses on the market and their costs and content vary. None of this training is quality assured by the Department for Education. The Department for Education also provides online resources such as the Help for Early Years Providers platform, which can help people to understand the EYFS without completing formal training. The aim of this change is to give applicants the autonomy to decide how to achieve the required level of knowledge and understanding in a way that best suits their needs, while ensuring that those who already have the required knowledge, such as childminder assistants and nursery workers, do not have to unnecessarily undertake training. This follows feedback from the sector indicating that a reduction in the percentage of level 2 staff in these ratios would be helpful. We have heard that it would enable them to deploy staff who, for example, are extremely experienced and should be included within ratio but are not qualified to level 2, or those who may be awaiting confirmation of their qualification. FOR EXAMPLE - The EYFS currently sets out that, for children aged two: there must be at least one member of staff for every four children at least one member of staff must hold an approved level 3 qualification at least half of all other staff must hold an approved level 2 qualification Proposed new wording: there must be at least one member of staff for every four children at least one member of staff must hold an approved level 3 qualification at least [30%] [40%] of all other staff must hold an approved level 2 qualification

Section 3: Safeguarding and Welfare (3.28, footnote 33)	New Route to Becoming Qualified – Experience-Based Route The DfE intends to introduce a new experience-based route for practitioners to gain approved status to work within staff:child ratios. This new route would be available to practitioners holding a qualification identified as meeting most of the relevant Level 3 Early Years Educator criteria. As with the ‘overseas adaptation route’ candidates would meet missing criteria by working in their setting whilst under the supervision of a senior member of staff. The manager will be required to submit evidence to the DfE that the missing criteria have been met in order for the practitioner to become approved to count in the ratio. Once approved, these practitioners would be eligible to count within the Level 3 staff:child ratios, though they would not gain a formal qualification.	Group and school-based provider version	Section 3: Safeguarding and Welfare – 3.38 in group and school-based provider version	The aim of these changes is to allow more staff to enter and progress within the early years workforce, while maintaining quality, thereby removing barriers to recruitment and retention.	For consultation

We have also heard concerns that it is leading to difficulties with the recruitment and retention of staff. The requirement would instead be moved to managers, given their responsibility for quality in their setting. The requirement for managers would apply to anyone entering a manager role. Managers already in post at the time of this regulatory change would be exempt, however they would be required to obtain the relevant qualification should they subsequently move to a different manager role. There would be a two-year grace period to gain the qualification following appointment to a manager role. Managers would be responsible for ensuring their staff have the right maths skills and knowledge to deliver the EYFS curriculum effectively.	Group and school-based provider version	Section 3: Safeguarding and Welfare – 3.37 in group and school-based provider version	The aim of this change is to enable talented practitioners with a natural aptitude for working with young children to progress with their career in the early years sector. ## Q&A:

Q: What is this consultation all about / why are we launching this consultation?

A: The Budget saw the single biggest investment in childcare in England ever. This investment will remove one of the biggest barriers to parents working by vastly increasing the amount of free childcare that working families can access.

We want to work closely with the sector to ensure early years providers are ready and able to offer these new entitlements. We understand that the recruitment and retention of qualified staff is a key issue for the early years sector. That is why we are committed to delivering flexibility for providers to help them meet the ambition of the Spring Budget investment. As a first stage in growing and supporting the early years workforce, we are launching a consultation on a package of additional flexibilities that could be introduced to the EYFS framework while protecting the quality and safety of settings.

The proposals in this consultation have been informed by conversations with a wide range of stakeholders and early years providers. We hope to hear from many people and organisations so we can gather a broad range of views. This will help us reach well-informed decisions as to whether the changes would be helpful to a wide range of providers to help us shape the final package of support.

Q: How long will the consultation be open?

A: The consultation will be open for 8 weeks from Wednesday 31 May until Wednesday 26 July.

Q: What do these proposed changes mean in practice for settings?

A: The aim of these proposed changes is to help grow the workforce and support them to deliver the new entitlements announced at the Spring Budget. They will allow providers more choice over how they operate and deploy staff, and make it easier for them to deliver the EYFS through the creation of better tailored, slimmed down versions of the framework.

The proposals in this consultation have been informed by conversations with a wide range of stakeholders and early years providers. We hope to hear from many people and organisations so we can gather a broad range of views. This will help us reach well-informed decisions as to whether the changes would be helpful to a wide range of providers to help us shape the final package of support.

Q: Do these proposed changes undo the 2021 reforms to the EYFS?

A: This consultation will not reopen discussion on the changes made to the EYFS as part of the 2021 reforms. This consultation does not propose any significant changes to Section 1 or Section 2, which were the focus of the 2021 reforms.

Q: Could these proposed changes have a negative impact on the sector?

A: The proposals in this consultation have been developed based on feedback from the sector, and will offer providers increased flexibility and alleviate known burdens. Our aim is to ensure providers can operate successfully and practitioners can focus on providing children in their care with a high-quality early education, as well as having opportunities to progress their careers. We hope to hear from many people and organisations so we can gather a broad range of views. This will help us reach well-informed decisions to help us shape the final package of support.

Q: When will these proposed changes come into force?

A: We aim to bring any changes that result from this consultation into force in early 2024.

Q: Is early 2024 not too late to start supporting an already struggling sector?

A: The proposed changes within this consultation aim to support the sector ahead of the rollout of new entitlements from April 2024. By bringing in any changes resulting from this consultation in early 2024, we are aiming to give the sector some time to use the proposed flexibilities and ensure they are ready for the new entitlements.

Q: How does this consultation relate to the planned ratio changes?
