

A virtual conference on practices to develop habitats that conserve agricultural biodiversity and their benefits in western farming systems for farmers, conservationists, and other agricultural professionals

- Farmer preferred habitats & practices
- Best methods & plants for practices
- Beneficial insects associated with biodiversity & their impacts in Western cropping systems

Two days:
May 24th & 25th
8 AM - 12 PM

Featuring: Peter Kenagy of Kenagy Family Farm in the Willamette Valley • Brad Bailey of Lenwood Farm in the Columbia Basin • Maryclair Birkemeier Stehman of Meridian Orchards in the north Willamette Valley • Rachael Long, University of CA Cooperative Extension, Yolo County • Rex Dufour, CA Office National Center for Appropriate Technology • Gail Redberg of the Tribal Native Nursery of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation... and more!

REGISTRATION REQUIRED!

<http://beav.es/44x>

Gwendolyn.Ellen@oregonstate.edu

or call 541-829-3337

for more information & accessibility requests