The Roadmap to Federal Resources for Disaster Recovery (Roadmap) provides information to help state, local, tribal, and territorial partners navigate some of the commonly identified post-disaster challenges, solutions, and federal financial resources.

The Recovery Support Function Leadership Group (RSFLG) released the Roadmap, designed to help state, local, tribal, and territorial entities and other interested parties who are facing recovery and resiliency challenges and who may benefit from federal financial program support. Users of the Roadmap are prompted to think through challenges they may be facing post-disaster, evaluate potential solutions to those challenges, and then identify which of the federal financial resources aligned to those solutions may be applicable to their specific criteria.

The Roadmap serves as a useful informational tool for entities navigating the post-disaster recovery resource landscape. It is important to note the Roadmap is for informational purposes only and was compiled with publicly available information and should therefore be viewed only as a starting point for individual research.

The Roadmap is available both as a PDF document and as a web tool.
