

Let your voice be heard!

The work of the Federal Government impacts millions of people each day. Through notice and comment processes, listening sessions, town halls, crowdsourcing, and much more, Federal agencies take a variety of actions to consult with the public. These interactions can be powerful mechanisms to receive critical feedback and engage with those directly affected by policies, regulations, and programs.

Your feedback will help OMB shape a new Federal framework for public participation and community engagement (PPCE), ensuring that PPCE activities meet the interests, needs, and priorities of all members of the public, including underserved communities.

- Input is requested by May 17, 2024.
- Share your experiences interacting with Federal Government PPCE activities.
- Suggest approaches, tools, and metrics for a Federal framework for PPCE.
- Recommend how OMB can continue to co-develop this framework with you.

"It's time to remember that 'We the People' are the government — you and I. Not some force in a distant capital. Not some powerful force that we have no control over. It's us. It's 'We the People.'" -President Joseph Biden, April 28, 2021.